

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I want to thank all those who have donated their time and expertise to helping me acquire more precise data. The list is lengthy, from coroners, morticians, members of historical societies, emergency managers, staff from numerous national organizations, academics, city officials, to local librarians and interested individuals. Their responses to my phone calls, e-mails, and help in document searches have enabled me to chase leads and improve files.

The number of people who have been of assistance is far to great to name them all. So, at the risk of hurting the feelings of those I fail to mention by name, I wish to explicitly acknowledge the assistance of a few who stand out in my mind.

First, I wish to acknowledge the assistance of Dr. Edward Rappaport, Acting Director of the National Hurricane Center, National Weather Service, NOAA, in Miami, who has generously shared so much information to me concerning hurricanes.

In particular I wish to acknowledge the Assistance of my local Blue Ridge Summit Librarian, Nancy Bert, who has happily processed for me a very large number of interlibrary loan book and article requests. Besides being of assistance she has from the start shown interest in this project and encouraged me to keep at it.

I also wish to acknowledge the assistance of Dr. Jessica Jensen, Head of the Emergency Management Department at North Dakota State University. Dr. Jensen has, a number of times, found copies of academic articles not otherwise accessible to me through my local library interlibrary loan program.

Most of all I wish to acknowledge and thank my wife, Lorna Jarrett-Blanchard for her work with a website designer, Ayse Stenabaugh, in the design and development of the website as well as the development and “population” of the Spreadsheet.

As the project expands, and is open to the public. I look forward to adding new contributors to the footnotes of the information they provide, and thus acknowledging their contributions.
